Rhododendrons

THE native Rhododendrons are our most gorgeous, hardy broad-leaved evergreens, and in the Carolina Mountains only are they seen to perfection in a profusion world-famed. Here they form "Laurel" thickets miles in extent, are almost impenetrable, often attaining the size of trees. It is hard to give an adequate impression of the marvelous show they make both in leaf and flowers, but no small share of this plant beauty can be transplanted to home grounds, and particularly where space permits massing them, as only in this way can they approach the grand effect shown in their native haunts.

Hardy Vines, Climbers, and Creepers

HERE are many spots on hillsides under trees and on banks of streams where ordinary plants do not thrive and where a low covering of green is very desirable. For these purposes the list below is a good one, though only partial, for many of the taller vines can be used, such as Lonicera, etc., and low shrubs as Zanthorhiza, Myrica, etc., which are offered elsewhere.

Hardy Native Ferns

FOR shady locations, no class of plants can equal the Ferns. They are easily grown in ordinary soils and will often thrive where it is impossible to make flowering plants succeed. We handle large quantities of Ferns annually and recommend the following:

Hardy Native Lilies, and Bulbous Plants

THIS group of plants is one of the most indispensable for showy effects, particularly the Trilliums and Liliums. The former blossom in earliest spring, and delight in rich, moist, shady locations, while the latter thrive in the more open places and produce most gorgeous results in summer when planted in masses, as nearly all plants should be for best effects. Lilies require rich soil, with plenty of moisture, but well drained, and make a grand show planted among Rhododendrons or other shrub evergreens or in a deciduous shrub border.

How to Successfully Grow Native Azaleas and Broad-leaved Evergreens

FOR best results, plant AZALEAS, KALMIAS, LEUCOTHOE, PIERIS, and RHODODENDRONS in mild, acid soil, in partial shade, with good drainage. A deep, porous soil is very essential to grow this class of stock. The ground should be excavated to a depth of at least 2 feet or more. Leaf-mold, humus, or well-rotted stable manure should be carefully worked in and packed tight around the roots. Fill in excavation with rotted sods, muck, or peat soil, mixed with a small quantity of sand, avoiding the use of lime.

Plant the same depth as shown by earth-line near the base, which indicates how deep the plant was imbedded before being dug for shipment. When planted, mulch with several inches of forest leaves. Allow this mulching to remain around the plants and renew annually each autumn. This mulch keeps the ground cool in summer and protects against freezing in winter. A thin covering of rich soil may be used to good advantage in holding the mulch in place and to assist the leaves in decomposition.

Carefully observe these instructions, and your planting will succeed.

For planting in borders and Rhododendron-beds, the following are recommended: Galax, Shortia, Ferns, Orchids, Lilies, Trilliums, Cimicifugas, Iris, Polygonatums, Sanguinarias, and most other perennials.

NOTE TO FLORISTS:

Special Case Prices on Galax Leaves and Leucothoe Sprays, both green and bronze, in season.

MOST holiday remembrances—flowers, candies, and the like—last but a few days; even the memory has disappeared in a fortnight or so.

Decorations of evergreens—one of these boxes—will remain fresh for weeks, bringing a daily thought of the donor. One of our friends said that the Galax, the Holly and the Ground Pine kept splendidly until long after Candlemas, and that the Spruce remained green for over three months.
